

Using the Library's Online Resources

The library offers a variety of online resources for research. Here are some of the options that will best suit your research needs for this particular project:

Ebrary

Ebrary offers a wide range of resources, including over 125,000 ebooks and access to scholarly journal articles. You will need a log in to use Ebrary. The librarian will give you your user name and password.

Sign in here!

You can start with a simple search here...

...or click "Advanced" for more search options

If you need some extra tips on searching, be sure to check out the How-to Videos and LibGuides.

I also have the option of choosing a Subject to begin my search process. For example, you might want to look under the "History" Subject heading.

Here's an example of a search using Ebrary:

After clicking "Advanced," I am brought to the "Advanced Search Page."

SweetSearch

If you are looking for scholarly websites or sites that have been approved for educational use, SweetSearch is the way to go. This unique search engine works just like Google. However, it weeds out the sites that have not been approved for research purposes.

"Hiroshima" AND "Atomic Bomb"

When typing in my search terms, I am going to use quotation marks around the terms and Boolean Operators to connect them.

Boolean Operators tell the search engine how I want my terms to connect. The most common are:

- AND – Include all terms
- OR – Use one or the other term
- NOT – Exclude this term

For example, if I want my results to include the terms Hiroshima and atomic bomb, I need to place the terms in quotations marks and insert the Boolean Operator AND between them.

Here are some of the results when I combine these terms:
